Dear Mary Sue,

As far as I know, the system of cross referencing that Lucy and I are using should meet our requirements.

Re the important report that came in - I xeroxed copies for all important names and groups on it, and had files made by Lucy for each new person and new group. These are all X referenced on our index cards, so that the whole network is available, and the minor names have been X referenced. They are easily locatable and are building up a picture of our enemies.

On a report which was as important and significant as that, I wanted every line to be available. So I think that I am doing the correct thing. If there is any other method or additive you would like me to do - I'll do it with pleasure.

love

Jane
